

History shows repeatedly the danger of allowing the news media to be consolidated in the hands of a few. From the yellow journalism of William Randolph Hearst to Sinclair's present efforts, the message is clear. Power corrupts. This consolidation of the broadcast media has got to be reversed, and the Sinclair Broadcasting Group is an excellent place to start the dismantling.